The Soros Foundations Network

Every year the Soros foundations network gets larger, stronger and more engaged on a broader front. While I am extremely gratified by this development, I must admit that I did not plan it.

The network was born in the heat of a revolutionary moment. When the former communist empire started to crumble, I found myself in the unusual position of understanding the historical process, believing in the concept of open society, and possessing the wealth to act upon my beliefs.

That was more than ten years ago. By the end of 1996 I had established a network of nonprofit foundations in 25 countries, including the United States. When I started out, I gave little thought to the long-term implications of my engagement. Had I done so, I would probably have shied away from establishing such a network. I was then and I remain today extremely critical of philanthropic activities.

Nevertheless, I began to realize that the network was here to stay about five years ago, when the revolutionary moment, and my own revolutionary fervor, began to cool off. The transition process was taking much longer than I had expected, and I took the long view that the foundations were going to outlive me. I was led to this conclusion not only by political developments, but also by financial considerations. My wealth was growing while my life expectancy was eroding. Strange as it may seem, financial considerations have played a relatively small role in my philanthropic activities up to this point. The limiting factor was never money but the ability to put the money to good use.

In the first years, I increased funding as fast as the network could absorb it, going from less than $3 million in 1985 to $300 million by 1994. This hundredfold increase could not have been accomplished by following the traditional model of other organizations. Indeed, the network became known for its ability to respond rapidly with innovative programs to quickly changing conditions. Projects were authorized on their merit, without strict budgetary limitations. This was the right approach at the time, but it was not sustainable. We had to bring some order to our large, far-flung, and unwieldy network by introducing budgets and other traditional bureaucratic procedures.

This difficult adjustment process, though still not complete, has been successful enough to allow us to embark on new ventures. In the beginning of 1996, we greatly expanded our programs in the United States, entering into some of the more traditional areas of philanthropy but applying the unique conceptual framework of open society to the development of our activities. And on the international front, I now plan to establish new foundations in five countries in Central Eurasia, nine in Southern Africa, as well as in Guatemala, eventually bringing the number of foundation in the network to 40.

The Soros Foundation for an Open Society – Romania

The Soros Foundation for an Open Society – Romania (SFOS) was founded in Bucharest in 1990, with an aim to support the development of an open society following the overthrow of the communist regime. SFOS was registered and has operated in keeping with the provisions of the Romanian law, enjoying full decision-making autonomy. The founding members, 29 prominent personalities of Romania's public life, make up the SFOS General Assembly. The National Board, elected by the General Assembly from its members, has the responsibility of taking decisions concerning the Foundation's strategy, its program priorities, the criteria for proposals and the annual budgets. The grant making decisions under the various programs are made by an extensive and partly decentralized structure of program juries and expert committees.

SFOS-Romania works in two main directions: (1) it proposes programs meant to address major needs of the Romanian society and institutions that are working towards a democratic transition; (2) it responds to needs, requests and ideas coming from the public and from various organizations in Romania. All SFOS programs are advertised in the media, and the applications are practically considered on a competitive basis, by expert juries.

SFOS – Romania operates with four branch-offices in Bucharest, Cluj, Timisoara and Iasi. The staff of every one of these offices is in charge with administering the programs and carrying out the decisions of the National Board and of the juries. The role of the branches is to identify local needs and initiatives and to tailor programs accordingly, representing all the local areas at the level of the national Foundation.

In 1996, the Foundation developed a total of 204 programs and projects.

Soros organizations in the world

The Soros Foundation for an Open Society – Romania (SFOS) is part of the network of independent non governmental organizations – national foundations and other affiliated institutions – established and supported by George Soros in the world. This is a decentralized network of organizations operating in 30 countries – most of them in Central and Eastern Europe and in the former Soviet Union.

The mission of the entire network is to foster the development of open society. The national foundations and the other organizations are dedicated to building and maintaining the infrastructure and institutions of an open society in every country involved, as well as through regional programs. They support a broad array of programs in education, media and communication, civil society, science and medicine, arts and culture, economic restructuring, legal reform, respect for minority rights.

The annual budget of this vast philanthropic endeavour has risen to approximately $350 million over the past couple of years.

Who is George Soros ?

George Soros was born in Budapest in 1930. In 1947, he emigrated to England, where he graduated from the London School of Economics, and in 1956 he moved to the United States, where he began to accumulate a large fortune through an international investment fund he founded and managed.

George Soros's philanthropic mission is to transform closed societies in open ones, as well as to protect and expand the values of existing open societies. „In my philosophy”, George Soros said, „open society is based on the recognition that we all act on the basis of imperfect understanding. Nobody is in possession of the ultimate truth.” In closed societies, „the individual is subjugated to the collective, society is dominated by the state and the state is in the service of a dogma that claims to embody the ultimate truth”. George Soros proposes himself to counteract this by the action of his international network of foundations, as described above.

In addition to many articles on the political and economic changes in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union, George Soros is the author of: The Alchemy of Finance (Simon & Schuster, 1987, republished by John Wiley & Sons, 1994); Opening the Soviet System (Weidenfeld & Nicholson, 1990); Underwriting Democracy (The Free Press, 1991); Soros on Soros: Staying Ahead of the Curve (John Wiley & Sons, 1995). He has honorary doctoral degrees from the New School of Social Research, the University of Oxford, the Budapest University of Economics, and Yale University and is the recipient of the Laurea Honoris Causa, the highest honor of the University of Bologna, in recognition of his efforts to promote open societies throughout the world.

The goals of the Soros Foundation for an Open Society – SFOS – Romania in 1996 were to consolidate and further develop the Foundation's mainstream programs: education, communication and civil society, as well as to enhance professional quality, openness of communication, partnership with other players in designing and launching new projects. SFOS was in constant pursuit of creative ideas for projects that would involve as many individuals, groups and significant institutions as possible. After the first years of its activity, the Foundation proposed itself to focus on programs likely to have durable effects.

Democracy assistance by the international Soros network of national foundations and other institutions – SFOS-Romania included – has been managed in a unique way, which has also proved to be uniquely successful, as acknowledged worldwide. On the occasion of his visit to Bucharest, in October 1996, George Soros referred to the beginnings of SFOS – Romania itself, saying that „we, as a foundation, acted in a revolutionary spirit, we had an idea which, I think, was shared by a significant part of the people in Romania – the idea of an open society – and we tried to do as much as we could to help Romania move in that direction...” No pre-established structures and procedures burdened the quick, flexible approach to action and initiative that would support a democracy in statu nascendi; this became an ongoing „process of trial and error”, and therefore of maturing. That is why significant SFOS efforts in 1996 had to be directed toward the restructuring of the Foundation, and to the reconsideration of its rules of governance – so as to make it institutionally more adequate for the fulfillment of its mission, and also to counteract bureaucratic and other drawbacks, improving its potential of responding to new challenges.

In the field of education, the SFOS programs, addressing both students and teachers/ professors, had two main directions: (1) support of the reform of education and (2) support of extracurricular programs. Active partnership was sought with governing institutions and with organizations of the civil society. The most rewarding and successful cooperation was the direct one, with the schools themselves and with other groups of initiative. There were achievements in this field which are expected to lead to lasting changes in the educational system: the development of graduate studies (Master's and doctoral studies, research), of pre-school and primary school alternative education (Step by Step), and of teacher training programs. Extracurricular programs, e.g. Debate, Agora etc., are meant to prepare citizens for a democracy, through exercising the young students' initiative, communication abilities etc. In 1996, SFOS was the most important source for computer equipment and training as well as Internet communication in the Romanian educational field. SFOS continued to offer scholarships and grants for study in Romania and abroad, and to support individual and group research projects, as well as the production of relevant school publications. Projects were designed for later development – which aim at contributing to the consolidation of institutions, and also at supporting initiatives and efforts that are relevant for the reform – e.g. alternative textbooks and other materials, cooperation between schools and communities a. o.

In 1996, the communication programs held the biggest share of the SFOS budget: considering the SFOS mission to support the development of an open society, the endeavour was not only to provide the infrastructure, but also to assist the circulation of the values of an open society. The program included support for the publication of more than 180 books, both Romanian and in translation, and of almost 70 professional, cultural and academic publications. The media support programs developed training, Internet services and library assistance (automation, book donation, training). Nevertheless, this hardly covered 20 % of the requests in the field. Two major projects were therefore designed, to be started in 1997: (1) an all-country book distribution system – relying on private book-distribution initiatives, which will also be a pilot program in the region; and (2) an Internet society, Dynamic Network Technologies Ltd., which will provide specialized services on a commercial basis. SFOS will thus be able to focus on its specific goals even with respect to the Internet. A multimedia project was announced in 1996, meant to provide the proper frame for the development of Internet programs linked to the creative arts, publishing and education. Still another project prepared in 1996, the loan scheme for publishers, has been launched in 1997.

The programs devoted to civil society cover a vast area, from NGOs to community development, from inter-ethnic relations to European integration, from human rights to law reform. Time was spent in exploring needs and ways of action, while relatively limited funding was invested in a number of projects. The Center for NGO Information and Documentation (set up in cooperation with the Foundation for the Development of Civil Society) has become an important resource on Romania's civil society, both nationally and internationally. Programs were developed to enhance the skills of the local government in a decentralized, democratic system; assistance was also provided for entrepreneurial initiatives in the field of economy and ecology.

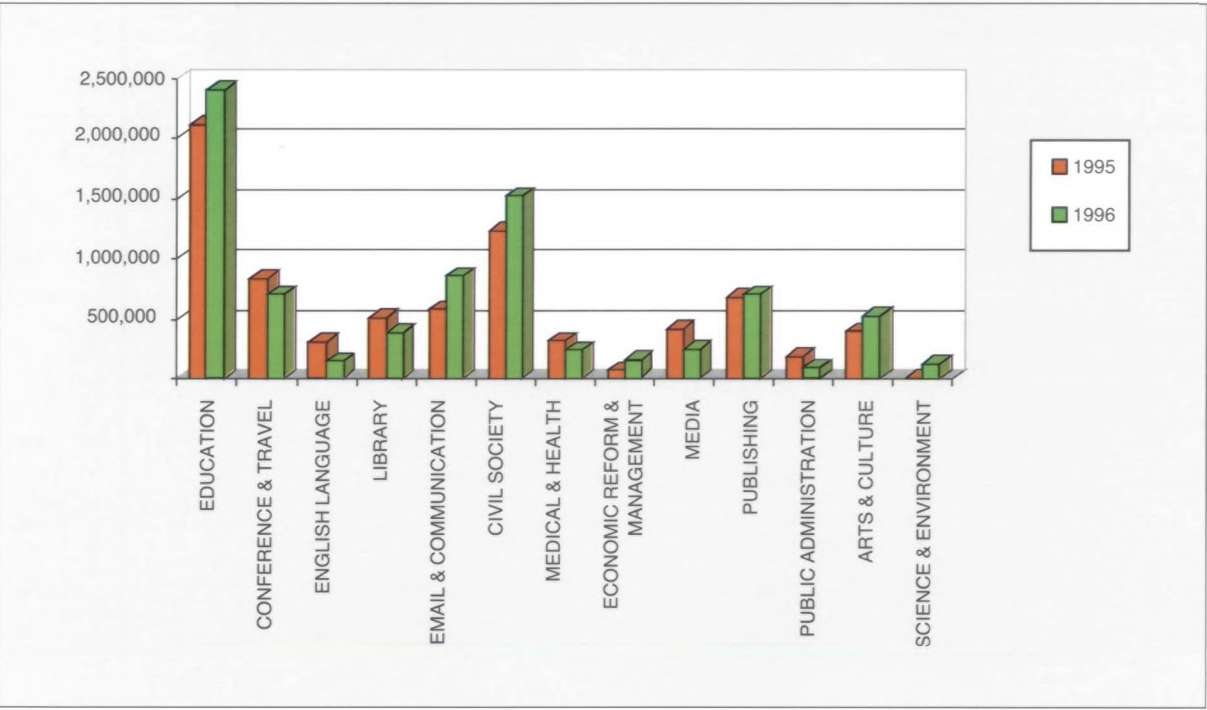

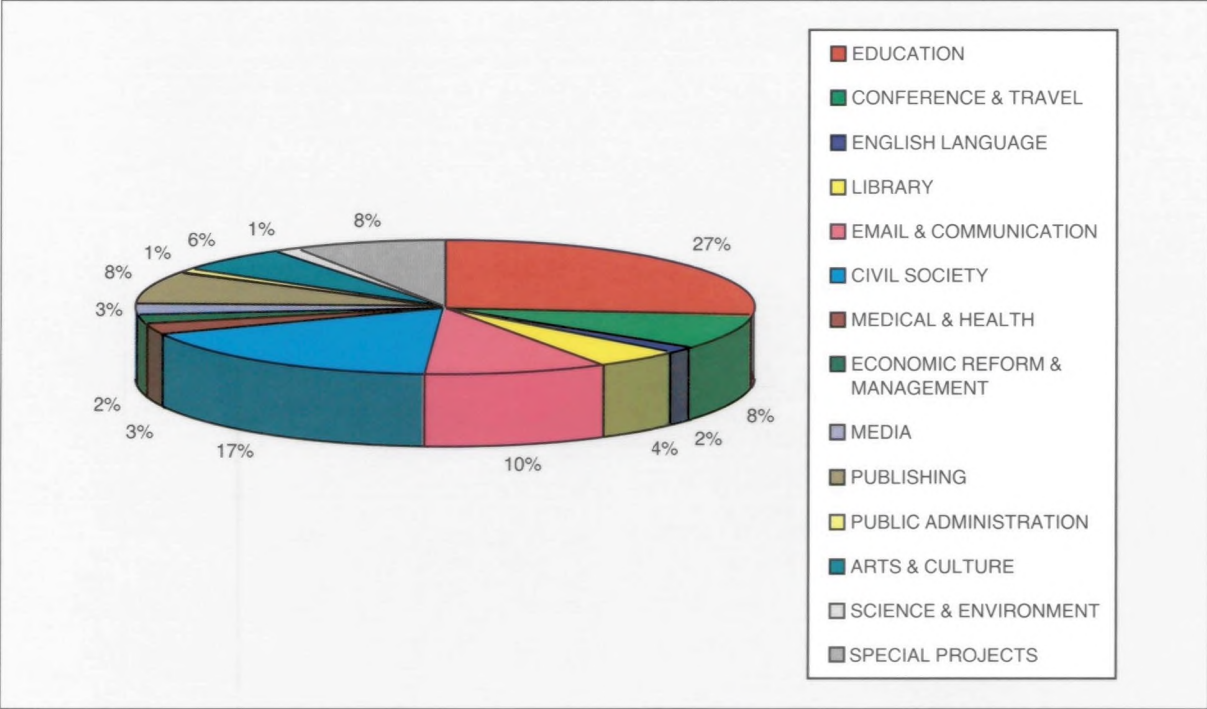

SFOS-Romania has a network of branches (in Bucharest, Cluj, Iasi and Timisoara). There is also a set of relatively autonomous programs, in such fields as the arts (Soros Center for Contemporary Arts), book distribution (Book Foundation), centers for foreign language teaching (mainly English), centers for job placement and orientation, electronic publishing. These programs are quite efficient in answering specific and local needs. The future prospect for all of them is to become financially independent and competitive offices.

1996 was a year of many achievements, and we hope that this Report will suggest the scope of our action. 1996 was also a year when new, major programs started being prepared, meant to crystallize into consequential and irreversible systemic changes towards an open society. These are, certainly, the very changes that are so much needed and wished for in Romania today.

EDUCATION 2,400,000 USD

1. Scholarships 361,000 USD

Soros Foundation offers scholarships in order to provide training in areas not yet developed in Romania, to encourage encounters with other cultures and to initiate co-operation between Romanian and foreign scholars.

Most of the scholarships were in the fields of humanities and social sciences, economics and management. The terms of eligibility have been announced in mass media and a contest has been organized.

There is an increased tendency to organize in-country courses, relying on Romania's academic expertise and on the experience in specific fields of education. Two summer schools in philosophy and social statistics were organized in Romania. The important gain was the increase in the number of participants, while costs were three times lower than they would have been abroad; the academic excellence too was of the highest quality.

2. HESP – Higher Education Support Program 351,000 USD

HESP was established in 1991 by George Soros, to consolidate the Soros network of philanthropic activities in the area of Higher Education. The mission of HESP is to promote the advancement of Higher Education in the fields of Humanities, Social Sciences and Economics in Central and Eastern Europe. By investing in scholarly and educational activities, HESP has been designed to assist institutions (existing, newly established, and emerging) of the region to affirm their potential and integrate into the international academic community.

Romanian HESP started in 1992, aiming to help restructuring the Romanian higher education system and to contribute to the establishment of a quality Higher Education, with the view to support the overall process of reforming the Romanian society. The HESP main focus is to increase the number of quality higher education institutions and help Academia to become a site where the intellectual elite will emerge and creatively communicate and cooperate.

Although education – and especially Higher Education – has been declared a national priority, the government has proved not to have enough funds to support Higher Education.

Therefore, HESP is aimed at complementing the government efforts to achieve a quality Higher Education.

Objectives of the HESP Program:

- to improve the teaching and learning process by providing better access to resources for all who are interested in creating an effective learning environment
- curricula reform, introduction of new courses and topics, and a new way of teaching based on a permanent dialogue between teachers and students
- to provide contacts with representatives of the Western Academia: scholarships, conferences, international meetings, workshops, visiting professors programs
- to encourage student research projects
- to promote scientifically based research in (higher) education
- to provide higher education institutions with the needed materials: books, equipment, etc.
- to support the creation of an effective communication/communicational network within the Academia, in order to set up a challenging environment from which valuable ideas and projects can emerge
- to encourage self improvement, and personal, social and cultural awareness
- to involve Academia into the public life more extensively.

In order to fulfill the above-mentioned objectives, the following programs have been currently run up by HESP:

3. Advising Centers 150,000 USD

The Advising Centers were set-up by the Foundation fall in three categories:

- advisory and placement centers
- study-abroad advisory centers
- information desks

The centers offer both individual advising and group advising. They organize conferences and workshops on specific topics, and provide small libraries with the latest publications in their field of interest.

■ Educational Advising Center – Timișoara

21,000 USD

The Center facilitates the participation of students in international educational programs (undergraduate, master's, doctoral, short-term non degree programs etc.) and encourages the development of academic and professional communication skills among students and professionals.

In 1996 the Center received 1829 requests for information and advice. Nine of the advisees received scholarships up to 31,328 USD from important higher education institutions in the USA and Europe.

More than 200 students participated in the "Study in the USA" seminar on higher education in the USA organized by the Center on the November 8, 1996 in Timișoara.

The program also included grants covering TOEFL, SAT and GRE fees for high-school and university students. Selection was based on the official test score.

■ COPA – Iași 47,000 USD

The center offers career services focused on assisting students and graduates in obtaining jobs.

Beneficiaries of the Center are both the educational system and the commercial and industrial life within the community. Starting with designing a psychological profile of the applicant, down to maintaining databases of job offers and demand, the main services provided for students, graduates and companies are: career advising and counseling study abroad, assisting in recruitment, evaluating and recommending the right group of candidates and promoting the supply of jobs on the labor market.

The program activities (counseling, orientation, placement and advising) have a deep impact on education, on the labor market and on mentalities.

■ The Advisory and Placement Center – Bucharest (APC) 49,500 USD

APC – Advisory and Placement Center started its activity in November 1993, as a program of the Soros Foundation, under the motto: "The right person at the right place, for university graduates", being designed as a supplementary link between the universities and the ones offering vacancies for the university graduates/students.

APC Foundation wishes to help the university graduates or students in providing them with all the information in order to make the right choice in their career. It assists them to find vacancies that are corresponding to their schooling and natural disposition. Due to its educational dimension, the APC Foundation uses such specialized techniques as:

- a computerized data base that includes university graduates/students, the firm/companies and the vacancies offer.
- By 1997, the number of university graduates and students listed in the APC data base rose to 9,000.
- the last quarter offer of vacancies lists for different schooling domains;
- professional orientation advising offered to university students:
 - * information regarding the labor market;
 - * projective techniques for looking up for vacancies;
 - * writing down a CV, thank-you letters for an interview addressed to a director;
- high validation scientific level interviews and psychological tests – standard and semi-standard scales and questionnaires, auto-evaluation scales;
- organizing training groups, salons of jobs, seminars and conferences in collaboration with universities.

In 1996, the APC Foundation organized two conferences, two seminars, 50 training groups and two salons of jobs. More than 3500 university graduates and students got an interview about labor market and ways to look for a job, and more than 1000 university graduates were the beneficiaries of professional orientation, being able to find vacancies by themselves due to the APC advising services.

For the first salon of jobs, in June 1996, training was offered in techniques of interview and public relations, for 50 director assistants. The training was attended by 42 firms, offering almost 250 vacancies. The following salon of jobs was attended by 39 firms offering 200 vacancies; APC also trained 50 assistants in public relations and techniques of interview. The APC staff formed training groups for new jobs that emerged as a result of the developing of the new labor market.

In 1996, APC collaborated with important companies that sponsored its activity as an investment for their future: Procter and Gamble, Coca Cola Romania, Hill International, CNM, KPMG, Interbrands.

One of the most important aims of APC was the improvement of the skills of its staff, by training and by participation in the 5-th Congress of FEDORA (Federation D'Orientation Academique) on "University Graduates Employment – A Challenge for Universities", and in a summer school on "Decision-Making on Life Long Learning".

■ Peer education 15,533 USD

Teenagers from Bucharest, Cluj, Iași and Timișoara were trained to initiate and develop projects according to the needs they identify in their peer group. Some of the most successful projects were: Raising awareness for the image of the city (Bucharest, Cluj, Timișoara); Agora network; Building relationships between institutionalized people (children and elder) and community.

■ Teenage Fever magazine 16,010 USD

Teenage Fever is a monthly magazine edited by high school and university students assisted by a group of physicians. Its main objective is to promote health education among high school students. During a school year, 8-10 issues are edited with 55,000 copies per issue. It is distributed for free to teenagers by 122 volunteers (physicians and teachers).

■ Reading for Understanding 14,664 USD

The main purpose of the program is to provide literacy education for young people in order to help them share literacy practices and better understand differences between cultures; to develop instructional strategies in reading and learning; to improve social attitudes and behaviours for a democratic society; to acquire knowledge through reading experiences for coping with a rapidly changing society; to develop basic competences of reading and oral / written discourse; to properly use cultural codes in a pluralist society; to set up a coherent methodology of writing/reading processes from the perspective of new developments in educational theories.

The program intervenes on three different levels of the educational system: the first, the fifth and the ninth grades, by establishing and developing the young students reading skills and practices. Besides the school activity literacy clubs are organized for children aged 7-9.

Through this project a cooperation between universities from Romania and from the USA has been established.

Assistance at every stage of the program is provided by the International Reading Association (Newark, Delaware USA).

5 workshops were organized, a Teachers' Journal was edited, books were purchased for the participating classes, video-recording of classes was made and the collaborators (experts, translators, teachers) were paid.

5. Step by Step Regional Program 816,653 USD

Step by Step is an educational program for children and their families. This educational program is officially accepted as an alternative within the national educational system. The Step by Step methodology is operating with several new concepts:

- individualising of didactic activities through planning educational experiences in activity centres;
- child personality development through stimulating creativity, initiative, judgement;
- support of the child in making his/her own decisions;
- parent involvement;
- support of the families in identifying and working out their social problems.

Preschool Education:

- permanent technical assistance for 72 preschool classrooms;
- organized 5 regional model training sites to provide training for the preschool teachers who wish to apply Step by Step methodology;
- periodical training sessions for preschool teachers;
- didactic resource for students and teachers in the Pedagogical High Schools;

Primary School:

- offer a continuous learning process for the children who have graduated the Step by Step kindergarten in 15 first grades and 2 second grades;
- the evaluation of children is done using the specific evaluation tools such as: individual evaluation form (qualitative); parent-teacher correspondence; folders with children's work;
- periodical training sessions for primary school teachers;
- didactic resource for teachers and students in the Pedagogical High Schools.

The Step by Step program served 2225 children and their families in 11 cities. For serving these children, 178 preschool and primary school teachers were trained by national experts and other 226 preschool teachers were offered an initial training in the five regional centers during 1996.

Pilot Step by Step first grade classrooms were set up in:

Alexandria, School no. 4;
Botosani, Pedagogical High School;
Bucharest, School no. 55;

CONFERENCE & TRAVEL 703,000 USD

Financial assistance under this heading includes three main categories:

- Awarding travel grants for participation in courses or conferences
- Conference room, Cluj
- Supplying mobile and translation equipment for conferences and training on simultaneous translation

1. Travel Grants 603,000 USD

Travel grants are awarded separately in the four offices of the Foundation, according to similar principles and procedures. The priorities in awarding the grants are organized according to the field of study and to the importance of the participation.

The program aims to cover the costs of supplementing short term scholarships, international and domestic travel to and from conferences, workshops, summer schools, courses, competitions, seminars, etc.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE 150,000 USD

There is a large variety of English language programs promoting the widespread good-quality teaching of English. Grants are offered to the English-language schools, partly self-supported. Courses are offered in Edinburgh for the training of English language students. Provision was also made for programs organized in partnership with the British Council, aiming at improving the conditions of teaching English in schools.

■ International Language Centre - Iași 41,122 USD

The aim of the Language School is mainly to provide training in foreign languages (primarily English) for Romanians and in Romanian language for foreigners – as well as services in related areas such as: teacher training, translation, organizing courses, workshops and conferences in the field. From its opening, the Center has provided instruction at various levels of studying English, including English for international and national tests, and English for all pre-school and school levels.

The English Language School plans to offer courses in Romanian culture and civilization and teacher training for teachers of English from the Republic of Moldova, under a joint project with the Chișinău Soros Foundation.

■ English Language School - Cluj 39,977 USD

■ English Language Courses at IAEELS Edinburgh 18,361 USD

Courses offered to students in English, a unique possibility to improve their English, explore British history, literature and modern life.

LIBRARY 386,000 USD

Programs under this heading include support for Soros Foundation libraries and for other Romanian libraries.

The two libraries established by the Foundation in Cluj and Timișoara are mainly focused on humanities, social sciences, also including interesting volumes on law, on management and periodicals.

Donations are mainly offered to university libraries, but also to other types of libraries (school, public, hospital), and aim at offering access to good quality books and publications not yet affordable by libraries themselves.

Courses were financed for the specialization of librarians, and provision was made for the automation of several Romanian university libraries.

■ The Library of the Soros Foundation in Timisoara - 19,998 USD

The Library facilitates the access to foreign academic publications mainly in the fields of social sciences, medicine and computer science. The Library offers 1,500 titles and 42 periodicals in the fields mentioned. In 1996 the Library registered 287 new readers and it was accessed by more than 700 visitors.

■ INTERNET - A World to Discover 151,340 USD

1996 was for Romania the Internet Year. After the installation of the satellite links in Bucharest, Cluj, Iasi and Timisoara, in December 1995, Soros Foundation became a major information provider in the region, playing its more and more important role in delivering electronic information to the people.

The first beneficiaries were, of course, the students from schools and high schools. Very soon, by connecting more and more schools, NGOs, hospitals, institutions related to local administration, the capacity became insufficient so in August 1996 we had to double the capacity of the links to 4 x 128 kbs.

Acting as a center of excellence in networking, training and technical resource and communications channel for Romania, the Communication Centers crossed the limit of a technical experiment and became a public resource, vital for its users. The centers also introduced a level of standards in the quality of service that cannot be matched even by commercial service providers and had a very important contribution in creating the data communications market in Romania.

The main activities and components of the Communication Centers are the following:

1. Internet node offering full Internet services, including the biggest USENET News server from Romania which offers link for:

- ❑ the Soros Offices and other Soros affiliates and institutional programs such as: International Language Center, Soros Career and Placement Center, Health Education Program, Electronic magazines (ex: EuRomania published by Dimitrie Cantemir High School Bucharest at www ldc.sfos.ro), The K-12 Multimedia and English Learning Center, Soros Center for Contemporary Arts, ATF, other institutions supported by Soros Foundation's programs as Media, Local Administration, etc.
- ❑ the Academic Computer Network from Iasi, Suceava, Bacau, Cluj, with more than 40,000 users and more than 1,000 connected computers
- ❑ over 400 institutions (schools, high-schools, media, NGOs and other non-profit organizations, public administration, hospitals, etc.)
- ❑ Students, university students, lecturers, visiting professors, professionals from various fields, board members, partners which have an e-mail only or full Internet access from a public access room or by dial-up.

The total number of people benefiting from Internet/e-mail services from Soros Network is over 80,000.

2. Modern training facilities with networked computers; also used for public access by students, high-school students, other members of Soros Club and for Internet training classes held jointly with schools and university departments.
3. The Library with more than 250 foreign computer-related titles, approx. 300 CD-ROMs and a few periodicals, in most cases the only one in the respective university center, which may be accessed on-site.
4. The technical departments (Graphics/DTP and Networking/Internet) offering services for different programs of the Foundation, starting with designing and creating leaflets and brochures, installing and maintaining servers, networks and Internet services, technical support and assistance, WWW site creation and software development.

■ E-mail - Internet Regional Allocation 216,146 USD

■ Multimedia Center Iasi 22,001 USD

The principal aim of the Center is to introduce and train teachers in alternative teaching methods and materials by integrating multimedia, audio visual equipment and teachers aids and resources to be used in local schools.

The Center cooperates with the School Inspectorate of Iasi County, with schools and teachers in general. The Center has 12 rooms and operates along the following 6 lines:

1. Provision of room for individuals and groups to study and analyze resources for new curriculum development.
2. Loan of books, films, cassettes and audio visual equipment for teachers to use in their respective schools.
3. Training in use and access to the information highway via Internet.
4. Loan of children's books from a library of 9063 volumes.
5. Children's program in keyboard and basic language programming on Atari computers for 155 children every week.
6. The Center's bus brings groups of pupils to the Library, helping them to come there from distances.

The Multimedia Center received (40,000 items) inventory of the complete academic curriculum of an American Elementary/Middle School grades K through 8. It was a donation made through the US Department of Defense, Humanitarian Assistance Program as part of a program related to military bases closing in Germany.

■ Sustained Development of Ecologically Damaged Small-Scale Regions 99,935 USD

The main aim of the program was the identification and financial support of local initiatives that promote the sustained development of tourist zones, which are located in ecologically sensitive areas. Local communities and authorities, ecological organizations, schools and the economic sector were involved in the implementation of this program.

The program reached its aim through the following objectives:

- rehabilitation and cleaning of deteriorated tourist areas;
- marking and cleaning of tourist paths;
- establishing self-supported information and advising offices for tourists and members of the local community;
- organization of camps for pupils and students, as framework for education about ecology and eco-tourism;
- drawing up of information materials for tourists, maps and brochures about the area, including the brief presentation of the development project.

39 ecological organizations (NGOs) applied for support. A specialized jury selected the following 10 project proposals:

Banat - JA Friends of the Mountains - Bergfreunde, Timișoara
Nera Gorges, Beușnița

 34,305,000 LEI

The projects were evaluated by an independent organization specialized in environmental consulting. Here are some of the results:

- 48 camps were organized, involving more than 1,000 participants. Campers took part in practical ecological education, collected more than 90 tons of offal; marks on tourist paths were repainted. There were cases when children from the local community actively participated in the cleaning of the respective areas;
- 8 self-supported tourist information and advising offices were established. These offices distributed thousands of copies of the 22 brochures with ecological information about the different areas, and hundreds of the 25 different kinds of tourist maps. The program had thus an impact on more than 10,000 tourists;
- an area exhibiting the flora of the Western Carpathians can be visited in the Cluj Botanical Garden, that was made available by this program;
- all the ten financed organizations succeeded to cooperate well with other organizations and also with local authorities, while 47 other NGOs were also involved in the program;
- more than 80 newspaper articles were published about the actions organized by the ten organizations. All projects were presented on a local (some also on the national) television at least once.

The conclusion of the evaluation was that the conditions for sustained development in the tourist zones were created. In most cases structures that can assure the continuation of the projects were established.

■ STRESS - Short Term Research in Social Sciences 24,432 USD

The aim of the program was to contribute to the education and training of a new generation of specialists in the field of social and behavioral sciences. The objectives were to support research projects (individual, collective or institutional) which reflect the present-day social reality, approach controversial aspects of social life and prove to have a non-conventional understanding of the present period of transition.

1. Ethnic Minorities 263,000 USD

An important set of programs were developed for the increase of inter-ethnic understanding among groups living in Romania. The programs are meant to contribute to the harmonious development of the society and to counterbalance the political use of nationalism and ethnic tensions. Special importance was attached to the Romanian-Hungarian understanding: there were grants to encourage translations and to produce a common version of history handbooks. Programs included the organization of debate groups, the production of surveys and the publication of press reviews.

The programs for Roma groups have been mainly oriented towards eliminating prejudices, and creating counseling groups in schools.

■ Cooperation between Romanian and Hungarian Civil Authorities 29,921 USD

■ Challenging Ethnic Prejudice 78,982 USD

The objective of the program was the identification and support of pragmatic local initiatives which promote the development of a harmonious relationship among the different ethnic groups, and facilitate communication and co-operation between majority and minorities.

■ Education for Ethnic Tolerance 2,423 USDObjectives:

- establishing the stereotypes and prejudices concerning the most important minority ethnic groups from Moldova (Gypsies) at school age.
- making a field and an empirical research in order to figure out the ways of building up the image of the other ethnic groups and the communication between them in school environment.
- finding solutions to decrease negative stereotypes, which could lead to racist behaviors.

The program was designed and implemented by the Al. I. Cuza University, Iasi, together with the University of Valencia, Spain and The Psychology Institute of the Academy, Chisinau. Stereotypes were singled out by using questionnaires, tests and interviews in a representative sample of population. Lab experiments were made beside other kinds of tests and analyses. The results of research were published in a volume, in the context of a larger transcultural research concerning the problems of Gypsies in Europe.

■ Social Demographic Database 9,738 USD

The aim of this program was to gather and analyze all pertinent information regarding the Transylvanian censuses since 1850 and to adapt these data to the present administrative and regional structure. The database is considered to be extremely useful for those interested in the research of Transylvanian realities. It will also contribute to a better information of the Romanian and international public. By means of offering and spreading exact data concerning the ethnic composition of the population, the program wants to contribute to the prevention of ideological and political disputes that are insufficiently supported with arguments or which are based on false assumptions.

■ Bridges between the Romanian and Hungarian cultures 24,894 USD

The aims of the program were to contribute to interethnic communication through:

- publishing and distributing in Romanian the review of the press printed in Romania in the Hungarian language;
- publishing and distributing the review of the Romanian press in Hungarian;
- publishing and distributing in Romanian the anthology of the Hungarian review Korunk.

■ Workshop for Romanian-Hungarian translators 14,753 USD

Knowing the fact that there is a growing need of well-trained translators, the objective of the program was to make a contribution to interethnic communication through finding and supporting young people interested in being trained as Romanian-Hungarian or Hungarian-Romanian translators. The strategy of training is tutorial, while common workshops have also been organized.

■ Research on Intercultural Issues 8,076 USD

■ Tracking Survey: Inter-ethnic relations and race prejudices 10,900 USD

The objective of the program was to finance an opinion poll about interethnic relations in Romania, between 1994 and 1996.

■ Training Roma Counselors 984 USD

The program aims to create a health education system dedicated to Roma communities, based on a study regarding the present situation. Equipment and supplies for printing a brochure

■ Assistance to Underprivileged Roma Communities 39,503 USD

■ Peer Counseling in Roma Communities 13,204 USD

Social work, psychology and pedagogy students participated in training workshops for working in Roma communities. Also teacher training was initiated in schools for these communities.

2. Human Rights 8,000 USD

■ Human Rights Tutorial Program 7,911 USD

The main objective was to spread the idea of human rights and create awareness by means of education. The strategy followed was tutorial training. SFOS financed the tutorial courses organized by OPEDDO (the Organisation for Education in the Domain of Human Rights). Students have been studying individually a chosen human rights issue with the help of a tutor assigned by OPEDDO. At the end of the course, students have the opportunity to present the results of their study. The most successful participants can become tutors, thus reinforcing the effect of the activity.

3. NGO Development 134,000 USD

The newly set-up NGOs in Romania need support in NGO management and in acquiring proposal-writing and project management skills. Funds were awarded towards the creation of an NGO-assistance center in Bucharest, that will undertake all information and training function of previous NGO programs. Grants for the creation of the Foundation image were also included under this heading.

■ Community Development 60,070 USD8. Democracy 190,000 USD*■ Local Democracy 1,060 USD

Strengthening the local democracy by means of increasing the degree of information and civic competence and the citizen's involvement in the dialogue with the public local authority.
Supplies for printing leaflets

■ Civic Education for Youth 12,637 USD

The program aims at increasing youth participation in the process of local administration by setting up and assisting local youth councils.
Transportation, materials, printing costs, workshops

■ CIVIS - Iasi 6,301 USD

The program aims at encouraging political communication and answering information needs. A series of TV broadcasts referred to the main dimensions of the transition process in Romania: to themes of democratic political culture and to civil society institutions at a local and national level. Civis proposed 18 themes, each to be approached in three 20-minutes broadcasts, twice a month. The themes are focused on human rights, minorities and the role played by various institutions, both national and local, governmental and non-governmental organizations, in developing Romanian's civil society. Program in partnership with BBC.

■ Public Opinion Barometer 59,165 USD

In 1994, Soros Foundation for an Open Society - Romania initiated this program, a unique initiative in Central and Eastern Europe.

Features:

- it is carried out quarterly on the basis of a questionnaire, on a national representative sample;
- the results of each poll are made public;
- a jury, whose members include respected academics such as Calin Anastasiu, Gheorghe Onut, Professor Traian Rotariu, Professor Dumitru Sandu and Professor Lazar Vlasceanu, assesses both the manner in which the research is carried out, as well as its results.

Among the jury's tasks lies also the appointment of the agencies to be charged to carry out the field research within the Public Opinion Barometer.

The topics of the study concern:

- political options and popularity of the major Romanian political parties and political personalities;
- standard of living and the quality of life;
- evaluations of the social and economic policy of Government;
- mass media audience;
- life-styles (floating section)

The results of each research were publicly released in the form of printed reports (diagrams, tables, texts) in press conferences and were also made available on Internet: <http://www.sfos.ro/news>

■ Emergency Care Project 34,138 USD

This program started in 1996 in collaboration with the Pilot Center for Emergency Medicine, Targu-Mures and Floreasca Emergency Hospital, Bucharest. The program had two components:

1. Equipment donation (computers and printers) to Floreasca Hospital for developing a pilot center in this field and
2. Three one-month training courses for physicians and medical nurses in the emergency field organized at the Pilot Center in Targu-Mures; 28 people attended. The principal aims of the courses were to get the participants acquainted with up-to-date methods of emergency assistance and to organize an emergency service at a European level. A copier, a color printer, software and spare parts for the training and first aid laboratory has been also donated to the Pilot Center for Emergency Medicine, Targu-Mures.

38,000 USD

"...an intense human experience..." - Le Quotidien du Jura, August 16, 1996

"...beautiful example of European, cultural and professional solidarity..." - Agri-Suisse, August 1996

The main aim of the program is to bring back to life Romanian villages and to improve the status of Romanian farmers.

The objectives of the program are:

- to offer basic training in agriculture to young Romanian farmers,
- to transfer social technology from farmers in Switzerland, and
- to assist Romanian farmers in getting organized.

To a less important extent, the program provides basic machines and tools to the farmers who participate in the training and to those who establish associations.

Training is provided through counseling and winter courses in Romania, offered free of charge by experts of the Extension Center of Bistrița, active as part of the program, and four-month stages at the Institute for Agriculture in Jura, Switzerland. The farmers selected for training session in Switzerland assist, upon their return, the consultants at the Extension Center by organizing study-groups in their village, and by sharing their knowledge. One cycle of the program covers the time of a crop (April-September), and the Romanian farmers attend courses at the Institute, and work as apprentices on Swiss farms. The courses include, besides Agriculture, Cattle Breeding, Mechanics, topics such as Civic Education, Law and Accountancy.

The Romanian farmers are assisted by the Extension Center in setting up associations (lucrative, professional and non-profit). The program means to develop the Romanian farmers awareness, the need of getting associated as owners of their processing facilities, so as to avoid the painful evolution that farmers had in Western Europe, who saw processing and selling companies make most profit from their farming products.

Another part of the program concerns donations of tractors and farming machines. The equipment is donated by Swiss farmers, the transport fees are covered by funds raised each year, with a contribution of USD 5,300 of the Soros Foundation to the total costs of USD 50,000 for the 1996 transportation. In 1996, 18 railroad carriages were loaded with 23 tractors, 5 large harvesters, dozens of smaller machines and one truck.

The other partners co-operating in the running of the program are:

- the Profordar Foundation (with branches in Romania and in Switzerland),
- the Institute for Agriculture in Jura, Switzerland,
- the Association of Study Groups of Farmers in Jura (AGEFA), Switzerland.

The funding was provided by

- the Department of Co-operation with East-Central Europe from the Swiss Government (USD 80,000 in 1996),
- the Soros Foundation for an Open Society - Romania (USD 37,750)
- the Government of the Canton of Jura (USD 17,000 in 1996),
- Swiss farmers (USD 22,000),
- Romanian farmers (USD 3,000),
- other founders in Switzerland via fund-raising campaigns - donors in 1996:

■ PRAIT Program

19,479 USD

The Public Relations and Advertising Institute Timisoara is designed to provide theoretical and practical instruction in public relations and advertising to professionals working in Timisoara and the surrounding area. PRAIT offers intensive courses and seminars in these two disciplines both to public and private agencies drawing on the skills of trained professionals and to professors from Europe and the United States.

The curriculum begins with a basic introduction into public relations but tries to move quickly from an abstract approach to concrete, practical applications. The courses build one upon another, although different instructors teach each module. The curriculum serves as a framework in which each instructor can individually tailor her or his lectures and may also assist the other instructors.

In 1996 the program was organized in collaboration with the Journalism Department of the West University in Timisoara and the International House in Timisoara and included two sessions of courses.

The first session: May 6 - June 7, 1996.

Instructors:

1. Paslaru Gabriel, Manager, Perfect Ltd, Bucharest (May 6 - May 10)
2. International House teachers (May 13 - May 17)
3. Morgan Harry, Fulbright Professor, Dept. of Journalism, West University, Timisoara (May 20 - May 24)
4. Heber Raimar, Designer, Globus, Hamburg (May 27 - May 31)
5. Sabo Mary Ann, Journalist, Grand Rapids Press, Grand Rapids Michigan (June 3-June 7)

The second session was organized between November 4 - December 6, 1996.

Instructors:

1. Paslaru Gabriel, Manager, Perfect Ltd, Bucharest, (November 4 - November 8)
2. Morgan Harry, Fulbright Professor, Dept. of Journalism, West University, Timisoara (November 11 - November 15)
3. International House Teachers (November 18 - November 22)
4. Heber Raimar, Designer, Globus Hamburg (November 25 - November 29)
5. Starck Kenneth, Professor, University of Iowa (December 2 - December 6)

Curriculum :

1. Public Relations - definition; Theory of Communication - verbal/non-verbal; Types of Public Relations; Plans of Public Relations; Crisis Plan; Press Events and Product Launches
2. Business English
3. Working Effectively in Communication and Media Relations; Professional Expectations in Communication and Media Relations; Communication and Media Relations as a Management Strategy; Professional Ethics
4. Press Releases; Contacts with the Exterior; The Creative Center; Legal Aspects ;

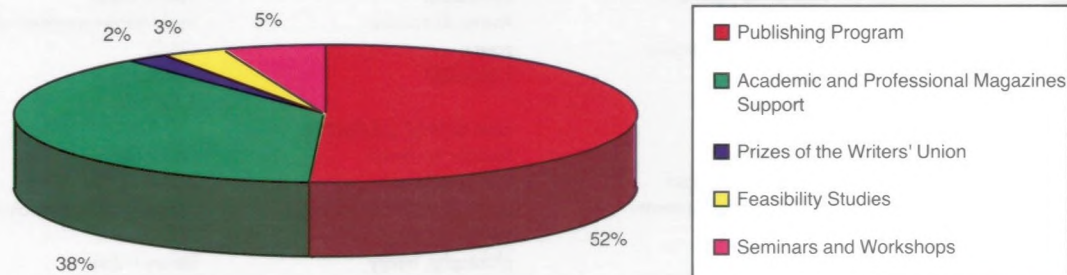

Collaborators

5. Media Relations; Working with the Press; Basic News Styles; Writing Press Releases; Copy Writing.

The students were managers of private enterprises, representatives of NGOs, heads of marketing departments of different enterprises, representatives of PR departments, university students.

■ Regional Media Program 3,500 USD

PUBLISHING

704,500 USD

The publishing support program of the Soros Foundation – Romania, initiated in 1993, was developed in two main directions:

(1) book publishing support: during the 1993-1996 period, the amount of almost one million dollars covered an average of 30% of the total costs for the publication; in Romania, of about 400 books by Romanian and foreign authors;

(2) support for the production of academic, professional and cultural publications: almost 70 publications (including, i. a., the Writers' Union publications) received SFOS grants in 1996, partially covering their production costs and equipment; there was SFOS support for the promotion of some of them both in Romania and abroad.

Mention should be also made of the successful regional pilot project of West-East Translation, widely extended in our region after its inception in Romania in 1995 – as well as of the SFOS support for the participation of Romanian publishers in international book fairs.

SFOS cooperated with a number of other Romanian and international institutions in training programs for publishers (marketing, copyright problems, distribution); and for alternative textbook publishing – thus addressing an important component of education reform (the training referred to textbooks evaluation, distribution, sale, exhibitions, selection and ordering).

■ Author Book Seminar – 16,598 USD

The program consists in book presentations and seminars with the participation of authors of works presenting topical issues of today's societies, mainly in Central and Eastern Europe. Priority was given to books produced with support by the Soros Foundation.

The Open Society and its Rivals conference, organized in May 1996, represented an exceptional event, which also marked the fifth anniversary of the Soros Foundation for an Open Society – Timișoara.

Participants: Daniel Chirot, University of Washington; Reinhard Engel, collaborator at Newsweek and Manager magazine; Irena Grudzinska, New York University; Marta Halpert, collaborator at Focus and Newsweek; Irina Livezeanu, University of Pittsburg; Vladimir Tismaneanu, University of Maryland; Calin Anastasiu, Liviu Antonesei, Mircea Mihaies, Alina Mungiu, Andrei Pippidi, Dan Pavel, Dorel Sandor and Stelian Tanase.

The books presented and discussed were:

Societati in schimbare, published at Athena Publishing House with the support of the Soros Foundation, author Daniel Chirot;

Cultura Civica, translated from English by Dan Pavel, published by Du Style Publishing House, with the support of CEU-Press, authors Gabriel Amond and Sidney Verba;

Balul mascat, published at Polirom, author Vladimir Tismaneanu, and

The risk in culture seminar took place on November 21, 1996, with the participation of Nicolae Breban, the famous Romanian novelist.

■ PROLOG 85,939 USD

The program started in 1994 with the aim to improve the results of the Local Government activities. Priority was given to the projects that deal with: studies of diagnosis, training for public officers and elected officials, pilot projects. The program utility is proven by the complexity of the projects and by their results. In 1996 there was a certain development of the projects, which were ever more thoroughly grounded.

One of the 1995 pilot projects, Improving the Communication between Local Government and Private Enterprises, organized in cooperation with the Foundation for Supporting Small and Medium Sized Romanian Enterprises, became a successful project in 1996 and developed in four cities: Braşov, Târgu-Mureş, Târgovişte and Turnu-Severin. The project was materialized in round tables and workshops, developed simultaneously in those four cities between November 18 and 22, 1996. The goals of the meetings were: to identify common objectives of the activity of small and medium sized enterprises, on the one hand, and of the Local Government on the other; to open a fast and fair information way between the business community and the Local Government; to induce awareness and sensitivity of counterparts for a real cooperation.

At the postgraduate level, the course Geographical Information System with Applicability in Environment Protection and Urban Management organized by the Foundation for Local Development and Public Services in cooperation with the Technical University of Civil Engineering and with the Ministry of Education, continued during 1996. The course is open for any high-school graduate who is involved in Local Government and Services. Course support is purchased from UNIGIS universities informational network. The following universities took part in the program: Manchester Metropolitan University, Free University of Amsterdam, University of Salzburg. Membership in this network certifies the recognition of the graduation diploma throughout the whole system.

One of the PROLOG important successes is Proposal for the Establishment of an Information System for Local Authorities organized in cooperation with the Federation of Romanian Municipalities. PROLOG support was materialized in the development of an E-Mail/Internet network for 82 Romanian Municipalities as well as in training organized in Bucharest, Cluj, Iaşi for City Hall personnel which is connected to this network. The project utility is to maintain: on-line information from any City Hall, necessary for a good cooperation between institutions and City Halls; a faster communication among local authorities; access to the data-bases and services offered by the Center for Research, Consulting and Personnel Development; access to the international data-bases, libraries and various other information.

PROLOG together with Managers Without Borders have organized Euroville '96 International Conference - a cooperation between NGOs and Local Government. Themes approached: City Hall as part of the administrative system; local democracy; law-making development; citizens - City Hall - Municipality Council; city institutions; communication between City Hall and citizens. The project 21 Agenda - Environment Protection and Lasting Development - at the Local Level started in 1996; its aim was to find ways to improve 21 Agenda at the local level. This project was organized in cooperation with the Federation of Romanian Municipalities, the Institute for Housing Urban Development Studies in Rotterdam and the Know How Fund. The first step of the project was to organize a workshop in Sinaia. The second step will include a consulting program to improve the local policies and strategies defined at step one.

Management, especially the one regarding human resources and that of development and change is a field where the greatest part of the public officers claim a lack of adequate training.

Thus, PROLOG supported the project Management Course for Local Government using the Distance Learning Course provided by the Romanian Branch of Open University London School, CODECS S.A.

During the development of the program partnerships were established with USAID, ILGPS / OSI, USIA, Know How Fund, British Council, European Network of Training Organization under the Council of Europe.

■ Professional Training for City Hall Employees

2,982 USD

The objective of the project is to bring in for the people already working and living in rural areas a better chance for professional training and for problem solving within smaller communities.

The training consisted in a six months course including such subjects as basic knowledge in psychology, sociology, legislation, theory of practice and rural sociology. Classes were held twice a week, 12 hours/week in Timisoara, The Social Department for the Training of the Unemployed. Courses and seminars were taught by professors of the School of Social Work, and by social workers.

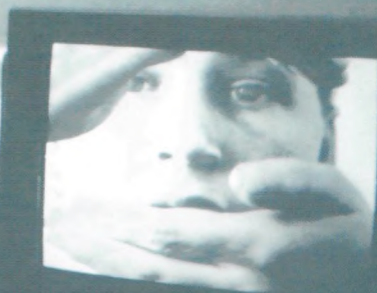

Within this program teachers worked with a group of 28 people for a period of 6 months.

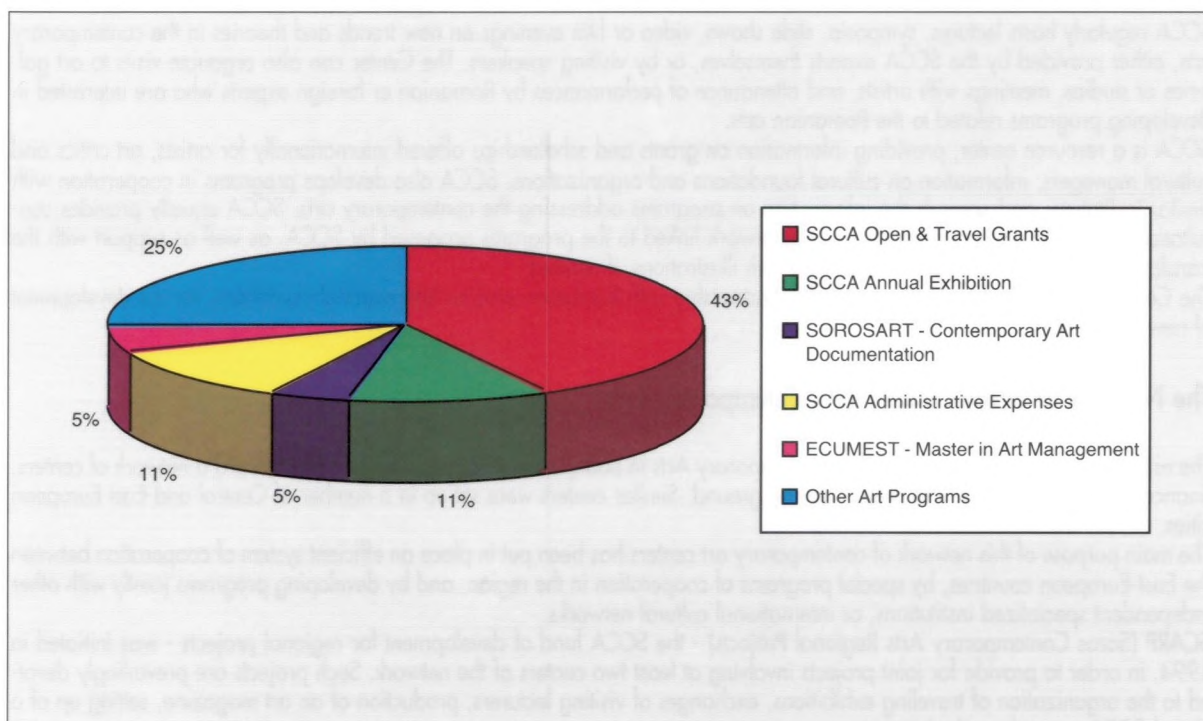

Alongside the theoretical aspect of the course three of the instructors organized practical sessions in which students studied their community and tried to approach different social problems from a professional point of view, dealing with real case studies.

At the end of the course students received officially recognized licenses allowing them to practice their newly acquired profession.

The project trained the people already working in City Halls in rural areas to develop basic professional skills and to learn more about social work and its legal aspects. The average age of the group that was trained was 35.

Partners: Western University of Timisoara, County Labor Department, Bethany Social Services.

ARTS & CULTURE 524,000 USD

Most of the arts programs were managed by SCCA - Soros Center for Contemporary Art.

The Soros Center for Contemporary Arts (SCCA)

The opening of the Soros Center for Contemporary Arts in Bucharest, in 1993, practically made Romania part of a cultural network that had emerged in Central and Eastern Europe and was meant to stimulate intercultural contacts and exchanges. SCCA relies on the same philosophy as the Soros Foundation for an Open Society - Romania (SFOS): its aim is to propose a new set of values, providing a frame of reference for a democratic society in this field; SCCA has also endeavored to induce a reconsideration of the relation between the artist and the public; special emphasis has been given to supporting contemporary artists in Romania, by promoting especially projects and creative expressions of alternative, non-conventional art.

The SCCA activities focused on the visual arts in the beginning. Later on, in 1994, the field of performing arts was taken over from SFOS and was included in the SCCA programs.

The Center has played a major role in redefining the position of the Romanian contemporary arts within the frame of world culture.

SCCA operates as a SFOS-Romania cultural center. Considering its aims and fields of activity, the Center has the quality of a center of documentation and promotion of the contemporary Romanian arts.

The visual Arts Documentary fund, devoted to Romanian contemporary art, contains texts and visual material, with information provided by the artists; the materials are organized alphabetically.

SCCA has also developed comprehensive documentation for artists whose work was seminal for the emergence of significant trends of the contemporary Romanian arts. This kind of information will be made available as a database by Internet. The SCCA documents are a resource of information, facilitating national and international contacts with galleries, art foundations, museums, artists' residence centers, centers for contemporary art. The Center also offers its support in designing WEB pages for individual artists, and provides the interested persons with specialized Internet information at the SCCA office.

The Performing Arts Documentary fund includes data and documents on recent and current achievements in the fields of theatrical performance, music, dance, film, opera, as well as information on grants and fellowships for artists. The SCCA office keeps collections of specialized publications, as well as a collection of audio and videotapes, for public reference.

SCCA develops its own programs, which deal with financial support, organization of annual events, the selection and participation of Romanian artists in great international events (biennials and other kinds of festivals etc.), awarding of grants and distinctions, organizing summer schools, training in cultural management a.s.o.

One of the permanent SCCA programs is the annual exhibition, which offers an opportunity for artists to explore new directions and mediums in their creative endeavors. The annual exhibition is organized by the SCCA from all points of view, including the publication of a bilingual (Romanian and English) catalogue.

SCCA regularly hosts lectures, symposia, slide shows, video or film evenings on new trends and theories in the contemporary arts, either provided by the SCCA experts themselves, or by visiting speakers. The Center can also organize visits to art galleries or studios, meetings with artists, and attendance of performances by Romanian or foreign experts who are interested in developing programs related to the Romanian arts.

SCCA is a resource center, providing information on grants and scholarships offered internationally for artists, art critics and cultural managers; information on cultural foundations and organizations. SCCA also develops programs in cooperation with similar institutions and spreads the information on programs addressing the contemporary arts. SCCA equally provides consultation regarding the requirements and paperwork linked to the programs proposed by SCCA, as well as support with the translation of documents and materials, and with illustrations, if needed.

The Center is open to consider proposals for partnership with Romanian and/or international institutions, for the development of new programs.

The Network of Soros Centers for Contemporary Arts

The establishment of a Soros Center for Contemporary Arts in Budapest in 1985 was the first step toward a network of centers, financed by George Soros. The project gained ground. Similar centers were set up in a number of Central and East European cities.

The main purpose of this network of contemporary art centers has been put in place an efficient system of cooperation between the East-European countries, by special programs of cooperation in the region, and by developing programs jointly with other independent specialized institutions, or international cultural networks.

SCARP (Soros Contemporary Arts Regional Projects) - the SCCA fund of development for regional projects - was initiated in 1994, in order to provide for joint projects involving at least two centers of the network. Such projects are prevalently devoted to the organization of traveling exhibitions, exchanges of visiting lecturers, production of an art magazine, setting up of a virtual SCCA network on the Internet.

ARTSLINK is a partnership initiative between the private and the public fields and offers fellowships for artists or cultural managers from countries belonging to the SCCA network. It was organized by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Citizen Exchange Council of the U.S. and the Open Society Institute in New York.

OSCL (Open Society Cultural Links), established in 1995, is devoted to organizing inter-regional projects initiated by SCCA or other institutions in the respective countries, and to the participation in such projects of other countries belonging to the network.
